Funeral services were held at 10:30 Wednesday morning at the J. H. Churchill Funeral Home for little Mary Wallace Imes, seven month eleven ounce infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Imes of Almo. Brother Lloyd Wilson conducted the services.

The baby was born at four minutes after eight o'clock Tuesday morning at the Murray General Hospital. Her short life lasted only about two hours.

A member of the family said Mary Wallace was a beautiful, healthy, normal baby in every respect except for a severe difficulty in her breathing which caused her death.

Survivors include her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John R. Imes, a brother, Ken Imes; grandmother, Mrs. Milton Imes of Almo and maternal grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Churchill.

Burial was in the Temple Hill Cemetery.

None Injured In Automobile Accident

An accident occurred at 8:30 last night on Highway 641 about 5 miles south of Murray involving a 1950 Ford driven by Keith Chilcutt of Murray and a 1949 Chevrolet driven by Mrs. Fred Enoch of Hazel Route 3.

According to an eye-witness report the accident occurred in the following manner: The Enoch automobile was traveling North on a slight distance behind the Chilcutt car approached from the rear, followed a short distance and pulled out to pass both cars. Apparently at the same time the Chevrolet turned left onto an intersecting by-road it was struck in the left side by the Chilcutt vehicle causing Mrs. Enoch's auto to turn completely over coming to rest on its wheels.

The only passenger in the Chevrolet was Mrs. Enoch's small son, Rob. Mr. Chilcutt was alone at the time. None of the three persons involved in the accident were injured.

Guy Turner of the State Police and the Sheriff's office investigated the accident. The highway was only partially blocked by the wreckage and the traffic was directed by volunteers until the proper authorities arrived.

Homebuilder Claims Purpose Of Tight Money Policy Has Failed And Is Discriminatory

Editor's Note: The following dispatch is the final in a series giving the arguments for and against the "tight money" policy. Today's dispatch is written for United Press by Joseph B. Havestrick, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

By JOSEPH B. HAVESTRICK—President National Association of Home Builders

Written For United Press

The American people have been listening for many months to a steady flow of reassurances from Washington—that the so-called "tight money" policy has been enforced equitably and impartially for their own best interests, to protect the economy against inflation. It is now time that they ask some searching questions of the money managers who are enforcing that policy. How effective is the tight money policy? Whom is it protecting? Is it being operated under the traditional American principle of equal treatment for all, or does it discriminate unfairly against one segment of our economy, against one group of our people?

If the aim of the federal government's credit control program and use of credit, I think it can fairly be said that the program has failed.

Looks At Record

Let's look at the record. In the field of consumer credit, it is an ironic fact that any American family can take European vacation on credit but it has difficulty financing a home in today's "tight" money market on a mortgage guaranteed by the United States government.

The heaviest impact of the government's tight money policy has fallen upon the home buyer and the home building industry, because they are singularly dependent on credit and consequently are most vulnerable to changes in the credit supply. Indeed, it might justly be said that they alone are bearing the burden of credit restraint, since no other

Country Music Fans To See Carl Smith Others, On Show

Country music fans of Murray and Calloway County can get a free glimpse of one of the Grand Ole Opry's most featured troubadours Monday night in the person of Carl (Are You Teasing Me) Smith who appears with several other Nashville WSM artists at the Carr Health Building at Murray State.

Smith, an Opry fixture since 1949, has established a world of listeners with a guitar and a melodramatic voice. A strict sacred as well as ballad singer, Carl resembles the great Hank Williams putting to music the songs that touch the heart.

It was a number, written by the latter that helped Smith reach the top. Hank (You Win Again) handed him the words to "There's Nothing As Sweet As My Baby," which proved to be very sweet in cash for both, although Williams never recorded it.

Carl Milton Smith was born on a farm near Maynardville, Tenn., also the home of Roy Acuff (Walbash Cannon Ball) Acuff. His first radio work came at the age of thirteen, on an amateur show. After spending three years in the navy, where he entertained for ship mates on his ship's "Happy Hour," Carl joined WROL in Knoxville where he sang with his old school band.

Later he moved to WGAC, Augusta, Ga. and on to WNCN in Asheville, N.C. In 1949 while again with WROL, he made his first Columbia record—"Guilty Conscience." The acclaim of this record brought him to Nashville and the Opry.

Recently he was divorced from singer June Carter (Carter Sisters and "Mother Maybelle") and the troubles of this gifted entertainer can be revealed in his current hits, "Wicked Lies" and "Before I Met You."

A sincere religious singer, Smith was named Best New Sacred Singer in 1955 Country and Western poll. One of his favorite hymns is the ancient church song, "Amazing Grace," which he recorded.

Carl is appearing on a Jaycee sponsored show along with Red Sovine and Goldie Hill.

Firemen Fight Fire, Dodge Yellow Jackets

By UNITED PRESS

Three fire trucks were called out here because a swarm of yellow jackets got angry.

William Pettigrew of Orangevale had decided to burn the wasps out of a hole. He inserted a burning gasoline-soaked rag into the nest with a stick.

The yellow jackets took a dim view of this and headed for their attacker. He fled, dropping the rag and setting the field ablaze.

Firemen from the three trucks, being careful to keep clear of the angry insects put out the fire.

Fresh Blast Frigid Air On The Way

By UNITED PRESS

A fresh blast of frigid air overspread most of the eastern third of the nation today, tumbling temperatures by as much as 40 to 50 degrees in New England.

However, the cold air stopped the rise of northeastern streams and rivers, swollen by melting snow and heavy rains.

The Allegheny River hit flood stage in some areas of Pennsylvania, was reported. At Pittsburgh, the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers exceeded normal pool stage, but remained below flood stage.

Several streams in the Cleveland area overflowed Wednesday, but receded to their banks as temperatures dropped.

Clearing weather followed the arrival of the cold wave, ending heavy rains that dumped a record 2.26 inches of precipitation at Buffalo, N. Y. The fall was a new 24-hour high for January.

The biggest temperature drops were in New England and New York where early morning readings registered near zero, or 40 to 50 degrees lower than the previous night.

The cold air mass also sent readings skidding into the 30s and 40s in the Carolinas and the Gulf states.

The northern plains, meanwhile, were hit by an invasion of super zero air and readings in North Dakota and Montana ranged from 15 to 20 degrees below zero.

Some early readings included Boston 16, Washington 27, Miami 72, New Orleans 47, Chicago 14, Omaha 17, Denver 20 and Salt Lake City 32.

Would Call Out Guard Boasts Chandler To Halt Proceedings

FRANKFORT, Jan. 24 (AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler Wednesday threatened to call out the Kentucky National Guard if necessary to prevent the state court of appeals from enforcing contempt proceedings against his finance commissioner.

Chandler and the state high court are embroiled in a dispute over the right to appoint a new clerk of the court to succeed the late Charles K. O'Connell, who died Jan. 10.

The court appointed O'Connell's deputy, Doris Owens, to the post Jan. 14, but on Jan. 18 Chandler named Walter Ferguson, Union, Ky., chairman of the State Board of Probation, to be clerk.

Each cited a different section of the state Constitution in support of his respective claim to the power of appointment.

Ferguson planned to present himself to Chief Justice James B. Milliken today to be examined in accordance with state law. The Constitution stipulates that the clerk must hold a certificate from the chief justice attesting to his eligibility for the office.

Ferguson, who was sworn in by Frankfort Mayor Robert A. Yount, does not, although Miss Owens does.

On the other hand, Ferguson has been commissioned clerk by the governor and Miss Owens does not hold such a commission.

Another development in the tug-of-war between the governor and the court was expected to be Atty. Gen. Jo M. Ferguson's effort to be recognized by the court today and a possible contempt citation against state Finance Commissioner James W. Martin.

Chandler said he had instructed Martin to refuse to pay either appointee until a "fair and impartial court could decide the question, and added he would resist contempt proceedings against Martin against the police agencies of the executive branch, including the National Guard if necessary.

In an ex parte ruling Tuesday, the court included a veiled threat that if Martin refused to pay Miss Owens' salary, it would bring contempt proceedings against him.

The sharply worded ruling termed the governor's action in appointing Ferguson "an obstruction to the administration of justice" and a threat to the integrity of the court.

"It would, take quite a bit of gymnosophistry to reach the conclusion that a clerk appointed by the court must be replaced by a clerk appointed by the executive," the court said. Milliken defined a gymnosophist as "a Hindu philosopher who can make black seem white, and white seem black."

Chandler told a news conference Wednesday that, "If the court wants a fight, I am ready to entertain them."

The governor criticized the court in an oblique manner, remarking, "I, too, have taken an oath to uphold the Constitution. So long as I am the chief executive officer of the commonwealth, the executive branch shall not be reluctant to follow the law of Kentucky, as it is construed and announced by a fair and impartial court of last resort."

He indicated he did not believe the present appellate court could be "fair and impartial" when ruling on a dispute involving its own members and powers.

"Att. Gen. Ferguson last week proposed a test suit to settle the controversy, but there was speculation here as to where a 'fair and impartial court' could be found to hear such a suit."

The suit eventually would reach the Court of Appeals itself, which then would be obligated to disqualify itself as an interested party.

In such cases, the governor would appoint a special court—but the question is how could a special court named by Chandler be other than an "interested party?"

The appellate clerk appointee will serve in the $9,000 a year post until a new clerk can be elected in November.

Mad Chemist Could Have Killed Girls

By ROBERT T. LOUGHRAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 (AP)—Authorities said today the slaying of two teen-aged sisters could have been the crime of a mad chemist skilled in the workings of unusual poisons which leave no traces.

The new turn in the massive police investigation followed the failure of a post-mortem examination to give any clue as to how the girls were slain. There was no evidence they had been raped. The unclashed and frozen bodies of the victims, Barbara Grimes, 15, and her sister, Patricia, 13, were found Tuesday dumped in a ditch on the city's southwest outskirts.

Dr. Jerry K. Kearns, one of three pathologists who conducted Wednesday's autopsy, said it may take several days to determine the cause of death.

"The murderer in this case was diabolically clever," Kearns said. "He used a method which we are unable to detect. Perhaps he is a person trained in chemistry and with a knowledge of unusual poisons."

The four-hour autopsy showed the girls were not killed by violence, carbon monoxide, suffocation, or any of the usual poisons or drugs, the pathologists said.

Meanwhile, police said a man who had been questioned intensively for two days in the case passed a lie detector test Wednesday night and is not considered a "good suspect."

And the FBI joined with thousands of city and county police in the investigation on the basis of a $5,000 ransom note to the girls' mother mailed after the sisters were deceased.

Donald S. Hostetter, agent in charge of the Chicago FBI, said the note was one of nine extortion letters received by the distraught mother, Mrs. Loreta Grimes.

Eight of the letters, asking $1,000 from Mrs. Grimes, were traced to a mental patient at Downey, Ill., veterans hospital. Authorities sought the sender of the ninth letter, who demanded $5,000 ransom for the return of the girls.

"THE PRICE OF PEACE"

In an inaugural address which lasted only fifteen minutes President Eisenhower pledged his second administration to a quest for peace and justice, thereby fulfilling his promise to the millions who voted for him and extending the olive branch to nations and people everywhere "who are, or want to be, free."

He said the price of peace will come high, and he made it clear that he considers our nation, as well as others, in peril. The whole world is divided, he said, but there are many indications that International Communism is breaking up.

We wonder what Republicans of a past generation would have thought of his declaration that "not even America's prosperity could survive if other nations did not also prosper."

Isolationists have argued for years that this country could go its own way alone in the world, that we have no responsibility towards the hungry people of China, nor the enslaved millions of Russia, but Mr. Eisenhower included them in his expression of good will and voiced the hope that they would improve their educational opportunities and build up their industry.

"The economic needs of all countries make isolation an impossibility," he said, and he said the United States must be willing and able to go to the aid of any and all free nations that desire to resist Communism. Not only with our moral support but, if need be, with our substance.

There was an air of restrained gaiety about the president's second inauguration that was in good taste, and in keeping with critical international relations. It was not what people of other nations would have expected in a country enjoying the greatest era of prosperity in history, but it was the kind of observance that makes all Americans proud.

Larson Parried On Bid For Hike; To Get Consideration

By FRED DOWN

United Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK — General Manager George Weiss of the New York Yankees parried Don Larson's opening bid for a $27,500 contract today on the theory that one perfect game doesn't make a season.

"Don will get every consideration in his new contract for having pitched his masterpiece," said Weiss in reply to the World Series hero's demand. "But we have an entire season to think of, too, and how many games did he win—eight or nine?"

Larson, who actually had an 11-5 record during the regular American League campaign, announced in San Diego, Calif., Wednesday that he has returned to the Yankees' first offer of $20,000 and added that he might quit baseball if his demand is not met. It was reported by a source close to Larson that the Yankees had offered him about a $4,500 increase.

Quitting Talk Not Serious

Weiss refused to discuss figures but made it plain he isn't taking Larson's talk of quitting baseball seriously.

Weiss said his next step, after actually receiving the rejected contract, "will be to decide whether to offer Don a new contract calling for a little more money or discuss the matter with him."

He laughed off suggestions that any "emergency head-to-head meeting" might be called, explaining, "some players have a way of asking for a lot more than they ever expect to get."

Larson, who achieved his unique share of immortality with his perfect game against the Brooklyn Dodgers, Oct. 8, joined slugger Mickey Mantle as a Yankee holdout. Mantle, the American League's triple crown winner and Most Valuable Player, is demanding $60,000.

Had Been Disappointment
Larson was a disappointment to the Yankees until September when he started to use his now-famous "no-windup windup." He reeled off four consecutive fine performances at the close of the season, was knocked out of the box in the second game of the World Series but in the fifth contest achieved the only perfect game in Series annals.

The Yankees were among the group of major league teams who did announce signers today. They obtained signatures from shortstops Billy Hunter, a utility man last year, and Jerry Lumpe, who flopped in an early season and was farmed out to Richmond.

Wait-Drop, top fielding first baseman in the American League last season with a .993 fielding mark, sent in his autograph to the Chicago White Sox along with pitchers Paul LaPalme and Jim Wilson, catcher Les Moss, and bonus baby outfielder-pitcher Bob Powell.

Among the others to sign were pitchers Don Lutz and Lloyd Merritt and first baseman Rocky Nelson of the St. Louis Cardinals; catchers Danny Kravitz and Dick Rand of the Pittsburgh Pirates; outfielder Bob Cerv of the Kansas City A's; and three Brooklyn Dodgers, rookie first baseman Jim Gentile, catcher Mike Napoli, and second baseman Jack Spears.

Goldfield Is Still Without Constable

GOLDFIELD, Nev. — Goldfield Township is going to have to get along without a constable for at least another two years.

That shouldn't cause any particular hardship, however, since mining camp but now a semi-ghost town, hasn't had a constable for about 10 years anyway because the pay is too small.

The attorney general's office ruled that Robert Luce, the first candidate to seek the office in years, was ineligible to seek election.

He filed as a non-partisan candidate and the attorney general held that only judicial and school posts are open to non-partisan candidates. Luce should have filed as a Republican, Democrat or Independent.

GOLDFIELD, Nev. — Goldfield Township is going to have to get along without a constable for at least another two years.

That shouldn't cause any particular hardship, however, since mining camp but now a semi-ghost town, hasn't had a constable for about 10 years anyway because the pay is too small.

The attorney general's office ruled that Robert Luce, the first candidate to seek the office in years, was ineligible to seek election.

He filed as a non-partisan candidate and the attorney general held that only judicial and school posts are open to non-partisan candidates. Luce should have filed as a Republican, Democrat or Independent.

PROTESTS SECRECY FOR DULLES

REP. WAYNE L. Said Hays: "As soon as Mr. Dulles gets in hot water, they run to an executive session."

Ortiz Marked Up With Ranked Pug

CHICAGO, Jan. 24 — Carlos Ortiz, an unranked but unbeaten lightweight, was marked up today for a bout with third-ranked Larry Boardman in his new outfit, but his manager, Ed Ferguson, wasn't disturbed by the prospect.

Ortiz, a Puerto Rican who has lived in New York for the last 10 years, earned the chance with a 10 round decision over Chicagoan Bobby Rogers Wednesday night on television for his 20th straight victory.

"I didn't think he should have been in the top ten rankings before last night," Ferguson said. "But after beating Rogers, who was a good tough kid, and considering who is in the top ten, I think he ought to be now."

"We'll take the Boardman fight, if we can get it," Ferguson said. "Carlos' best fighting weight is 136 and he only weighed 134 last night. He picks up a lot of punching power with two more pounds."

Ortiz himself complained about the light weight and said "I was sloppy. If I'd weighed a couple of pounds more, I would have taken him out of there."

Jim Hearn, veteran right-hander obtained from the Giants last October after a 5-11 year, became the fourth Philadelphia Phillie to sign.

Wait-Drop, top fielding first baseman in the American League last season with a .993 fielding mark, sent in his autograph to the Chicago White Sox along with pitchers Paul LaPalme and Jim Wilson, catcher Les Moss, and bonus baby outfielder-pitcher Bob Powell.

Among the others to sign were pitchers Don Lutz and Lloyd Merritt and first baseman Rocky Nelson of the St. Louis Cardinals; catchers Danny Kravitz and Dick Rand of the Pittsburgh Pirates; outfielder Bob Cerv of the Kansas City A's; and three Brooklyn Dodgers, rookie first baseman Jim Gentile, catcher Mike Napoli, and second baseman Jack Spears.

Yank Rookie Signs Contract

By UNITED PRESS

Second baseman Bobby Richardson, the best double play maker in the business, according to Casey Stengel, will report to the Yankees from Denver of the American Association where he batted .328 last season. Stengel has indicated Richardson easily could win the Yankees' regular second base job, in which case pepperhot Billy Martin undoubtedly would be moved to third base on a regular basis. Richardson, a resident of Sumter, S. C., has had two brief trials with the Yankees before. He is the ninth Yankee player to sign his contract.

The Giants increased their total of satisfied players to 17 with the signing of pitchers Alvin Dark and Alvin Dark.

Dark, who won 13 games and lost eight with Omaha of the American Association.

"They both drive!"
TWIN TRACTION...
a Studebaker-Packard FIRST
so good other cars will copy it

WHAT IS IT? Twin-Traction Differential gives you new pavement-gripping traction and new safe control impossible with conventional differentials. The secret lies in the fact that the Twin-Traction Differential delivers the major part of the engine's power to the rear wheel with the best traction—instead of the wheel with the poorest traction (as in a conventional differential). The result—roadability that's better in six important ways:

1. In ice, snow or mud, Twin Traction gets you out of spots where cars with conventional differentials would "spin their wheels."

2. In highway driving, it protects against skids that might otherwise occur when one rear wheel hits a slippery spot.

3. On sharp turns, it improves roadability by applying the major driving force to the inside rear wheel. This also tends to compensate for over-steering.

4. On rough or washboard roads, it reduces the rear-end bounce, sideway or swerve which results from a fast-spinning wheel suddenly hitting the pavement again.

5. When one rear wheel goes off the pavement onto a soft shoulder, Twin Traction directs the driving force to the other rear wheel, assuring safe, positive control.

6. In ordinary driving, Twin Traction cuts tire wear by assuring more positive traction.

Test it, yourself, today. See your Studebaker-Packard Dealer for a demonstration drive!

Guy Mitchell No Longer Sings Blues

By WILLIAM EWALD

United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (AP) - Guy Mitchell, almost dead broke a year ago, no longer is singing the blues.

"I won't kid you, last year at this time I had really come on hard times," said Mitchell as he dived into a whopping salad of tuna fish, cottage cheese and mixed greens.

"Bookings? They were awful. I had a real slump there. It was rotten. And I had come out of a law suit almost broke—it really drained me."

"Over a period of about a year, I had only one record you could call even a little hit, '99 Years.' And it just made me enough money to meet my obligations."

Decides To Marry - "First, last fall, I decided to get married," he said. I had just $200 in the bank, which believe me, is cutting it pretty thin for an entertainer. Her name was Elise Sorensen and I had met her in Vancouver."

"Well, I got this booking at a hotel in Atlanta and they were wonderful to us. Gave us a suite with flowers and everything. Breaking when this fellow, Monte King, who works for Columbia down there, called a record to the attention of Mitch Miller and myself."

The record was Marty Robbins "Singing the Blues," a number which was beginning to move fast in the country field. Myself, the bearded artist and repetoire chief at Columbia Records heard it and S-O-Sed Mitchell into New York.

"Sells Two Million Copies - "We cut 'Singing the Blues' on a Sunday night," recalled Mitchell. "And it really took off—you know, it's sold two million copies now and it's still going pretty good."

"It put me over the top. Since it's been released, I've been all over TV—Ed Sullivan, Steve Allen, Dinah Shore, Rosemary Clooney, Jonathan Winters. I'm going to emcee the Arthur Godfrey Wednesday night show on March 6 while he's in Africa."

"My bookings are really sold in this country and I've got two big shows coming up on British TV on Feb. 10 and 16. The last one they're going to call 'The Guy Mitchell Show.'"

make up our complex economy. Industrial Borrowing Continues

The fact is that the hard money policy has not halted industrial borrowing for plant and equipment expansion. In 1954, business spending for new plant and equipment amounted to $27 billion; in 1955, it was $29 billion, and in 1956 it has reached $35 billion. This is a strange form of credit reduction.

In 1955, American industry financed about 80 per cent of its expansion out of its own capital reserves and went to the open market — in competition with prospective home buyers — for only one dollar of every five needed for expansion. But in 1956, one dollar in every three spent by American industry for new plant and equipment was borrowed in the open market and the spending was on a far greater scale than in 1955.

Most Pointed Comment - Perhaps the most pointed comment on the effectiveness of the "tight money" policy is to be found in official figures prepared by the Department of Commerce and the Securities and Exchange Commission. They show that spending on new plant and equipment for industrial expansion ran at an annual rate of about $25 billion when the Federal Reserve Board first started its "restraint" on credit in 1956 and that it has moved upward in an unbroken line since that time to a rate of nearly $40 billion at the present moment.

And this at a time when American families are being told that it is "inflationary" to borrow money for new homes.

Neither home builders nor home buyers are asking for special treatment. But they are convinced that the time has come when there should be a thorough going re-examination of our monetary policies.

Being Wife Of Comedian Is Not Unusual

By WILLIAM EWALD

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT
NEW YORK 19 — What's it like to be married to a comedian?

Well, according to Marian Paar, wife of Jack Paar, it's just like any other conjugal union — except that your husband is apt to wake you up at two in the morning to test out a joke.

"We're a pretty closely knit family — Jack, myself and our 7-year old daughter, Randy," said Mrs. Paar today. "We don't live the sort of life people think celebrities lead."

"Jack is a great one for staying close to our Westchester home. He doesn't stay up late, he intensely dislikes cocktail parties and he hates coming into New York City."

Has Off Beat Moments
Still, Mrs. Paar confessed, their domestic life does have its off-beat moments.

"In his sounding board," she said, "Whenever he has a new joke or a new bit, he tries it out on me first. Sometimes, he'll think of something while he's dreaming and he'll wake me up to ask me if it's funny."

"He goes to the point where I have to keep a pencil and paper by the bedside to write his jokes down. However, when we wake up in the morning, they usually don't sound as funny as they did the night before."

Right now, Jack pilots a 15-minute chatter show on ABC radio, a program in which Mrs. Paar, and Randy also participate. It's beamed from the Paars' 10-room home in the suburbs.

Randy's A Stage Veteran
"So far, Jack hasn't really used me too much," confessed Mrs. Paar. "But, he has used lots of Randy. Occasionally, he'll tape record a bit with Randy during the day to insert on the show — you know, she's been on stage with Jack since her diapers."

"There are more trying moments, however, for a comedian's wife. "When Jack does a guest appearance on say, an Ed Sullivan show, and he's good, I just explode with congratulations when he comes home."

"But sometimes, his material may not come off — it happened on a Sullivan show last October or November. Well, then I'll talk about it with him. But the show, I'll ask him if he wants a hamburger or a bottle of beer or I'll just remain quiet."

"We've been married for 13 years and they've been wonderful."

13 Year Old Has Eye On Police Job
MT. CARMEL, Ill. — Kay McGill, 13, already has decided that she wants to be a Los Angeles policewoman when she grows up.

In a reply to Kay's letter, Joseph W. Hawthorne, general manager of the Los Angeles Civil Service Department, said she will be notified of an examination to be given in 1958 when she meets the age requirement.

Kay frequently visits the office of her grandfather, Sheriff Charles E. Kennard.

LOOK OUT BELOW!
CHICAGO — "Shooting stars" actually are only about 65 miles high. The typical meteor is burned up by the earth's atmosphere at a height of about 40 miles, according to Franklin J. Meinel, editor of the "American Peoples Encyclopedia." Meteors fall at speeds ranging up to 45 miles per second.

WOLVES ATTACK
PONTVEDRA, Spain, Jan. 17 — Heavy snowfalls and below-zero temperatures have forced starving wolves down from the hills in repeated attacks on villages. It was reported today. The reports said the wolves had killed one man and many cattle.

Air Condition The Outdoors Is Scheme

By DOC QUIGG

UNITED PRESS STAFF CORRESPONDENT
NEW YORK 19 — Every once in a while there blossoms on the American scene a man with the vision and courage needed for a breakthrough into untrodden ways.

We watch him pitch right in and get the job done, and we wonder why we never thought of that. We say, "Why, of course... that's the way to do it." And we are jealous enriched by his bravery.

Down in Florida there dwells such a man. He is fixing to air-condition the outdoors. What a concept!

Gads, the Possibilities!
It seems outlandish that the world has been mousing along for so many years with only indoor air conditioning. Where has our imagination been?

If ever an area needed air conditioning, that area is the outdoors. Think what it would do for Death Valley, or the Fulton Fish Market. Consider its impact on smog-happy L.A., a California metropolis oft-times victimized by stenches from many sources.

Ponder, if you please, the impetus to tourist trade of a sign on the highway: "Welcome to Arkansas (air conditioned for your comfort)." With outdoor air conditioning, New England could save the lie to Mark Twain's old saw about New England climate: "If you don't like the weather here, wait a minute."

Enter Our Hero
Our hero of the moment is only 31, which is pretty close to the average age of the framers of the U. S. Constitution. His name is Gilbert Edwards. He is building, in Fort Lauderdale, a housing development intended for retired older folks.

Informed sources have reported that it gets hot in Florida in the summer. According to word that has seeped up north, Edwards has in the works for his development a three-acre garden, lushly landscaped with tropical plants and cucumber-cool with air conditioning.

The plan is to have majestic palm trees swaying around the premises. In each tree, but camouflaged among the fronds, will be big, commercial-size air conditioning units. Each will be of sufficient horsepower to chill a 60-foot-diameter area around each tree.

A Cool Seventy
The plan is to keep the outdoors around there cooled to 70 degrees during the hot weather. Ideal for bench sitting. In the interest of intact and whole skulls, the palm trees will be kept denuded of coconuts.

Who says the pioneer spirit is dead? If this isn't a breakthrough on several fronts — including a weather front — I've never heard of one.

As you know, they've already brought water to the edge of the ocean in Florida with the swimming pools right on the beaches. Now how about moving the pools into the ocean itself. How's that for an idea?

And let's get some sun lamps under those palms, so people sitting outdoors in the air-cooled shade can get some sunrays. Now we're talking Edison move over — or, maybe, roll over.

Don't sit under that coconut tree with anyone else but me.

McDONALD 'KIDNAPING' FILMED FOR POLICE

DURING FILMING, in color and sound of a re-enactment of the "kidnaping" of actress Marie McDonald, the actress points to a spot in the front yard of her Encino, Calif., home. Materials Tested With Gamma Rays

RICHLAND, Wash. — A noiseless bombardment is being waged beneath 20 feet of water at the Hanford Atomic Works to see how test materials stand up under fire of high-energy gamma rays. Scene of the silent siege is the bottom of a storage basin pool at the rear of a nuclear reactor, a veritable underwater "no man's land" of atomic radiation. Targets are rubber, plastic and other materials used in reactor construction. Ammunition is the waste energy from intensely radioactive fuel elements which have been discharged from the reactors and allowed to cool in the deep pool. The fuel elements must be cooled and until recently, gamma rays from the irradiated uranium were harmlessly dissipated in the water. New equipment now pumps the gamma rays to work. General Electric Company operators said they load the fuel elements, or "slugs," in tubes devised for directing gamma rays at test materials. The samples are lowered into the cylinder until they lie in a direct line with the radiation from the slugs, radiation capable of piercing thick concrete walls. Some of the samples tested have been exposed to gamma bombardment on reactor materials and components. It is aiding in the development of new materials for the future.

Down Concord Way

We have a greater sympathy for those who work at printing a newspaper now that our fourth and fifth graders of Buchanan school visited the printing office of the Paris Post-Intelligencer Friday and saw the paper printed. We believe Mr. Williams there told us it was his son who printed the Ledger and Times.

Anyway, we were treated very nicely at Paris and they even took a picture of us for the paper. Perhaps such weather as we had last week was not the kind usually chosen for trips, but our grade rooms at school were being painted so when it came time for mine to be painted I had promised the children we would go to Paris for the day, and the time was well spent. We visited the court room, the jail, the fire department, the Pet Milk Plant, the shirt factory, the carburetor plant, the Woolworth Store, (where they gave every child a big balloon) and the newspaper office.

We ate at a restaurant where each child did his own ordering and paying. (something I would have no idea how to do at ten years of age) then we finished the afternoon by stopping at a Dairy Queen.

When we got back to school the afternoon room was all freshly painted, rose, and gray, and tables varnished. When we came back to Concord we found that Concord and Hazel basketball teams were gone to Graham, Ky., to participate in some games at which they nobly bore defeat and enjoyed the trip. Some of the teachers even ventured into a coal mine while in that coal mining vicinity.

There is very little neighborhood news to report. Everybody is too busy to visit anybody. By the way I took time to read the Paducah Democrat's Sunday article entitled "An Ex-convict Talks To Parents."

Not being a parent, I could really enjoy his advice on how to curb juvenile delinquency. He said it wasn't at all important that we keep up with the Jones' and that it was far more important for a little boy and girl to have a mother at home with them during at least their first nine years, to watch them, give them religious training, and teach them right from wrong, than it was for her to neglect them so she could buy luxuries.

Mothers may not feel that home keeping is a very glamorous job but when or who knows, gives parents the responsibility of curbing delinquency they should feel like public servants number one. The days still drag slowly on for Mrs. Virgie Lovins and other wheel chair patients unable to walk. We who are free to work and work forget how much we have to be thankful for.

Marvin Winchester had part of his stomach recently because of the result of ulcers so as the doctors promise him full recovery if he will rest and diet for six months, he must discontinue his storekeeping at Concord, so much as he regrets closing, he is selling out merchandise and groceries below cost and going back to his farm to recuperate.

CHAPTER 27

ALVIN STINER was a patient man, but now that virtue was being sorely tried. Here it was late February, the winter almost spent, and General Tipton was still alive. Every day for almost two months Stiner had expected to hear he was dead, but he hung on, a skeleton of a man who, perhaps by sheer human will, was successfully defying death.

From what the General had said—and Myra Grunwald had privately substantiated it—Stiner knew that Elizabeth Tipton would be brought face to face with the problem of making a living as soon as her father the General died. That would be the proper time to propose marriage. It must, of course, be tied in with Chas's death.

Returning to his flat one night, he found Jean Beauvais waiting in front of his door.

"Time you was gettin' home," Beauvais said in a hard, biting voice. "You owe me money."

Stiner was not sure which twin it was until he was close enough to see the scar that twisted one side of his face. He said, "I'm glad to see you, Jean. When did you get back?"

"You owe me two thousand dollars," Beauvais said.

Stiner unlocked the door and threw it open. "You'll get it if you've earned it." He got a light going, and when he turned, he saw Beauvais had come in and closed the door and stood with his back to it, dark, malevolent eyes filled with hatred. The room seemed filled with the smell of him.

"I've earned it," Beauvais said. Stiner showed both hands into his coat pockets. He habitually carried a derringer in the right-hand pocket, and now his fingers closed around it. Beauvais was a killer when he was aroused, and something had aroused him.

"Where's Rene?" Stiner asked.

"Dead," Beauvais said. "Gimme my money, Stiner, or I'll leave you like he left Rene."

Stiner showed his right hand, held into his pocket and gripped the derringer. "What happened?"

"We cleaned the fort out. Rene got shot afore the revolt. Was over. Somebody scalped him. Must 'a been Chubberty. Now I want my money, Rene's too."

Stiner said, "Did anyone get away?"

"No. Not even the women."

Beauvais laughed. "We got 'em. Mobbs I should've fetched their heads to prove it. 'Way you can prove it 'way until the ace field has been wiped out by the goes out. I'm the last man out of that country, and I darn near didn't make it."

Stiner relaxed the feeling of exaltation growing in him. "You wouldn't lie to me, Jean. You know what I'd do to you when I found out." He paused, and then added, "I'm sorry about Rene."

Beauvais lifted his head to stare at Stiner. "Sorry?" He swallowed. "He was my brother. We grew up together, lived together, fought together. I never done nuthin' without Rene. I'll now, never went anywhere. Now he's gone and you're sorry."

Stiner saw the misery that was in the man and knew that he had loved his brother. More than that, Beauvais blamed him for Rene's death. Stiner said quickly, "I'll go to the bank first thing in the morning for your money. I'll meet you in the Red Candle at noon."

Beauvais drew his knife and balanced it in his hand. "I'll take it now, Stiner."

"I don't have it. If you kill me, you'll never get it."

Stiner waited, eyes locked with Beauvais, knowing that his life hung on the slender thread of seconds dragged by, then slowly the knife slid back into its scabbard.

"All right," Beauvais said. "You'd better be there."

"I will. Now I want this news to get around. There's another thousand in it for you if you drop in at a few saloons tonight and mention what happened. Just say you saw it from some ridge."

It was dangerous, and Stiner knew that Beauvais knew it, but a thousand dollars was a great deal of money to him. Stiner said, "Three thousand dollars is enough start a business in Santa Fe. Or anywhere else."

Beauvais nodded and without a word wheeled out of the room.

The next morning Stiner went to the Grunwald house as soon as he felt sure Otto was in. He had seen very little of Myra this winter, and when she opened the door, he saw the pleasure that his visit brought her.

"Come in, Alvin," she said. "You haven't been here since Christmas. I call that neglect."

"I plead guilty, and I'm sorry because it's my loss. He asked, 'Otto here?'"

"He's been gone for an hour. She stood looking at him."

He smiled and, putting his arm around her, drew her to him and kissed her. He said, "I just resented word that Fort Butterfield had been wiped out by the

Telephone Almanac Is Distributed

Important contributions to human progress by leaders in various fields are featured in the newest edition of the Bell System's most widely-read booklet, the Telephone Almanac. Drawings of such varied personages as Geoffrey Chaucer, Isaac Newton, and Alexander Graham Bell illustrate the calendar pages, with brief accounts of how those people helped to shape our present-day life. This popular booklet is now being distributed by the Telephone Company.

A four-page color insert featuring telephone conveniences for home and office is also included in the 1957 edition.

The earliest contribution to human progress depicted in the Almanac is that of Thales of Miletus. In 500 B.C. he developed the practical geometry of the Egyptians into an agency for reasoning and helped clear the way for mathematical theories that guide us today.

The Telephone Almanac also tells of current progress in the Bell System. The opening of the transatlantic cable is reported, along with new developments of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, the System's contributions to defense and the work of Western Electric.

The usual features, such as important historical events for each day of the year and the rebus pages, are also included. To get your copy call the Business Office and they will be glad to send you one.

Big Census Expected In Year 1960

NEW YORK, N.Y.—A United States population of 178½ million by the time of the 1960 Census is envisioned by the statisticians. In that event, the 1950's will show population increase of about 27½ million, or two-fifths more than the 1940's, which up to that time had the greatest gain for any 10-year period.

These other features of the nation's population growth are noted by the statisticians:

In the 11½ years since World War II, almost 29½ million have been added to our population, which is more than the gain during the 23 years between World War I and World War II. During the year just ended, the population, excluding the Armed Forces overseas, increased by 1.8 per cent. Every geographic area shared in this growth but the Far West showed the highest rate of increase—almost double the national rate. Since the 1950 Census, California has gained more than any other state—about 3.1 million
